TAB: DETAILS

Prompt: Describe some ways that dogs and humans help each other.

Finding Details in Your Sources
Source One: What's Up Pup?	Dogs know when a family member is about to come home.
	Dogs show emotion.
	"Dogs don't have language. But they communicate with their eyes, their barks,and their bodies."
Source Two: Teacher's Pup	1.6 million dogs are adopted from animal shelters each year.
	Dogs teach kids to build positive relationships.
	"The dogs have made kids feel better about themselves and feel better about school."
Source Three: Puppy Love	Dogs set off a cuddle chemical in humans.
	This chemical is released when you look into a dog's eyes.
	Long ago, dogs and humans began to depend on each other for their survival.
